THE Kentucky Press Association closed a highly profitable and enjoyable meeting at Winchester Saturday, after a session of two days and three nights, every hour of which was set apart by the good people of the "Gateway City," with special reference to its pleasure. Unforeseen and unavoidable circumstances called us home just as we were getting into the good of the thing, but from all we can hear nothing was left undone that could be done to make the editors' stay in Winchester an occasion which will linger in pleasing memory so long as each shall live. The excursion up the Kentucky Union, the picnic at Boonesboro, the banquet, the hop and the other innumerable smaller incidents of the programme, combined to make it as thoroughly delightful as it was varied and interesting. The only drawback to the pleasure of the guests was the intolerable hot weather, which unfortunately our entertainers could not make to order.

The editors were prepared to find Winchester a thoroughly progressive little city, but even with the very favorable reports that had gone forth, they discovered that hardly the half had been told. New enterprises, new business houses, new residences and other evidences of a rapid and substantial growth are seen on every hand. Electric lights already turn night into day, while water-works, street railroads and numerous manufactures are a question of a very short time. The citizens are fully alive to the importance of their location and the resources which environ it, and each vies with the other in trying to keep at the head of the procession. Judge W. M. Beckner and Hon. Thomas G. Stuart are fit representatives of these enterprising people and everybody knows the lead they have taken in making Winchester what she is, and laying the foundation for her future assured greatness.

For satisfactory reasons Mr. Henry E. Thompson, who was chosen secretary, declined to serve, and Mr. Ion B. Nall, the clever editor of the Farmers Home Journal, who is the proud possessor of a charming wife and two as lovely daughters as anybody, was elected in his stead. He will find, poor fellow, before the close of his term, that he has no sincere and wish that Henry Thompson or some other man was in his shoes. The executive committee appointed by President Woodson is as follows: Ed O. Leigh, Paducah Standard; H. E. Thompson, Paducah News; John A. Lyne, Henderson Journal; Ben F. Briggs, Mayfield Monitor; C. M. Meacham, Hopkinsville Kentuckian. The next meeting will be held in Paducah next June on a date to be fixed by this committee.

Mr. J. F. Babbitt, Jr., general passenger agent of the Kentucky Union, to whom the association is indebted for the excursion over his road, accompanied the party and did all in his power to make the boys have a good time as well as to post them on the varied and inexhaustible resources of the country through which his road penetrates. The trip was a revelation to everyone who was not so much on pleasure bent, as to fail to observe the surroundings and the magnitude of the enterprises either in operation or on foot in that section. Speaking of railroads, reminds us that as usual the passenger agents of most of the lines in the State extended every courtesy in their power to the editors and laid them under further obligations for kindnesses. As secretary it devolved upon us to make the arrangements for transportation for the members with these gentlemen, and it gives us sincere pleasure to bear testimony to their unvarying courtesy and cleverness. Col. C. P. Atmore, of the L. & N., than whom there is no more agreeable man to do business with in the country and none more accommodating; Mr. J. H. McCracken, of the Louisville, St. Louis & Texas, who has more than once placed the association under obligations; Mr. W. H. Prouty, of the N. N. & M. V., who turned his road over to the editors for the time being and did it most gracefully; jolly and big-hearted Sam Morse, of the K. C. & Old Kentucky Route; H. W. Fuller, of the C. & O., D. G. Edwards, of the Queen & Crescent and Mr. Lafayette, of the Louisville Southern, each and all deserve as they do receive our thanks and are assured that we are ready and anxious to reciprocate their favors, whenever we can do so in any legitimate way.

We wish we had the time to mention all of the old friends of the press whose faces gladdened our vision again, but we must forego the pleasure. It is too hot to collect one's thoughts and express them intelligently.

The signal service says the present period of high temperature is unprecedented for June.

JUDGE J. H. TINSLEY, of Barbourville, tells us that he is in the race for appellate clerk to stay and is confident that he has more than a fighting chance to win. In fact he says he is going to win. The judge is from Col. Matt Adams' old home and has been led into the belief by hearing his friends talk, that there is great dissatisfaction over his failure to get the nomination. It is true that many were disappointed in the result of the convention, but since its nominee is so clean, honest and high-toned, there are not many, if any, democrats worthy of the name, who will vote for a republican opponent over him. Judge Tinsley thinks that Longmoor will not get 1,000 votes south of the Kentucky river and east of the Rockcastle. We are confident that he is mistaken, but all the same, Col. Adams owes it to the party to see that there is no sulking in his immediate camp. There is none elsewhere that we are apprised of, and if the democrats will only go to the polls, the one-legged old soldier will make the best race ever known. Judge Tinsley is one of the best men in his party and ought to poll its full strength, but he needn't hope to win because a few hot-headed democrats have been talking too much and too loudly with their mouths.

LITTLE PHIL THOMPSON has been talking to a newspaper reporter to hear himself talk and keep his name, which would otherwise be forgotten, before the public. In his "interview" he says that Gov. Hill will get the instruction of Kentucky for the next presidency, because the people of the State are opposed to Cleveland. This shows how much Mr. Thompson knows of Kentucky affairs. He has evidently formed his opinion from talking with disgruntled democrats whom Mr. Cleveland ignored during his term, of which class Mr. Thompson, we fear, may be one of which. He failed to get the appointment of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, it will be remembered, or anything else he may have asked for. At this writing there is no man closer to the democratic heart in Kentucky than Grover Cleveland, if we are to judge from private observation and the public demonstrations of approval and applause that his name drew forth every time it was mentioned in the late State convention.

The Senate by a strict party vote passed the House bill to admit the rotten borough of Wyoming into the Union of States, with some slight amendments, which of course will be concurred in. Judge Saufley tells us that there are not over 55,000 people in the entire Territory and that the constitution was adopted by a vote of only 6,000 for to 2,000 against. It is an outrage to make a State out of such material, but the party in power wishes to entrench itself further by adding two more senators and a representative to its list. Idaho is to come next, but New Mexico is to be left out in the cold, although she is largely more populated, because the democrats would gain by her admission into the sisterhood of States.

The selection of Mr. Urey Woodson, of the Owensboro Messenger, is meet and proper, and we are not without hope that the next annual meeting will promote Bro. Walton, of the Interior Journal, who has done his devoir like a knight at Ashby de la Zouche in the cause of clean, intelligent and progressive journalism.—Louisville Times. We appreciate the kind feeling which prompted the above, and agree with the writer as to Mr. Woodson, but so far as we are concerned the association has already honored us much beyond our deserts and in future we shall be more than satisfied to remain a high private in the rear ranks.

CONGRESSMAN CONNELL, of Nebraska, has offered a bill to pension every ex-slave in the South from $4 to $12 a month, with bounties from $100 to $500. This looks a little wild and visionary, but in these days of treasury raids this is about as good a scheme as any. Besides, the negro is better entitled to a pension than many of the so-called soldiers, who are living in ease on the public bounty.

The Louisiana Lottery will continue to do business at the old stand, the legislature having virtually decided to extend its charter for 25 years for the payment of $1,250,000 a year, or $31,250,000 in the aggregate. As the concern is said to make 60 cents clear on each dollar sent it, it can afford to pay this tremendous bonus for the privilege of swindling suckers.

They are proceeding in Mississippi in a way to make the embezzlement of public funds a very odious business. Ex-State Treasurer Hemingway was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for appropriating the State's funds for his own use and the sentence clinched by overruling a motion for a new trial.

LEXINGTON has three candidates for State offices to be filled next year up to date, and the election is 13 months off. Hon. M. C. Alford wants to be lieutenant governor and Rev. George Hunt and Col. John O. Hodges superintendent of public instruction. And they are all good men, too.

Official returns from all the counties in the Sixth Congressional district place the majority of Dickerson at 3,670. The total vote cast in the election for all candidates was 13,304. In the previous election Carlisle received 18,907, and Hamilton 12,887.

THERE is one republican in Congress who does not propose to be bulldozed by Reed and his gang. Mr. Lehlback, of New Jersey, not only made a speech against the Force bill, but announced positively that he would not vote for it, thereby dispelling any probability that he would do like Butterworth, Bobbitt and others, make speeches against and then vote for a bill. The New Jersey man opposes the bill on the ground that each State should regulate its own elections and wound up by charging and offering to present the proof if necessary that there were about as many frauds on the ballot in the North as in the South.

PREACHERS' SONS are not as a rule the most exemplary citizens. As a matter of fact, there is a well established belief that they are worse than other boys. Henry Ward Beecher's son, Herbert, is trying to maintain the reputation of his kind by getting into various snags that are far from reputable. He has just been acquitted at Seattle, Wash., of stealing a book from the custom-house, but there are many who are satisfied that the Scotch verdict would have been applicable in the case.

A MEETING of the 8th Congressional district committee, which is composed of the various county chairmen, has been called by L. W. McKee, member of the executive committee of the district, to meet in Lawrenceburg July 3d, for the purpose of deciding upon the time and place to nominate a candidate for Congress. Of course McCreary will be renominated, but the business has to be done regularly and in order.

THE San Francisco Chronicle of June 22 is the largest newspaper ever published. It contains 90 pages of seven columns each and enough valuable information about California to keep a man reading for a week. Mr. G. A. Hocker, real estate agent, Santa Rosa, sends us a copy with his compliments.

THE president has approved the dependent pension bill and now every lazy son-of-a-gun who drew pay in the army for work he never did, will now go to bed and say he is not able to earn his living. The title of the bill should have been "An act to promote mendicancy," as has been suggested.

THE peace makers are promised their reward hereafter and we hope they will get it, but they do not stand much show on this terrestrial sphere. Claude Daniel, prosecuting attorney in the Cherokee nation, killed one of his best friends because he tried to stop him and his wife from quarreling.
